ABSTRACT

This directory lists more than 150 organizations, agencies institutions, and volunteer groups involved in developing teacher education curriculum, providing training, promoting professional advancement, instigating programs of innovative instruction and implementing educational policy for preservice and inservice training of teachers for educational, instructional and managerial applications. The organizations are listed alphabetically by their acronyms; the Acronym Index contains the acronyms used and the full name of each organization. Each entry is coded for the activity interests of the organization. Directory entries contain the organization's address; contact persons; telephone numbers; a brief description of membership and purpose; activities involving teachers, teaching and teacher education; and types of publications. Centers and laboratories funded by the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Educational Research and Improvement are in Appendix I and II. Appendix III contains a list of state departments of education, with the names and telephone numbers of the individuals responsible for teacher education and certification in that state. The information is correct effective November, 1985, and the directory will be updated periodically. (JD)

INTRODUCTION

The Directory of Organizations Related to Teacher Education contains a listing of more than 150 organizations, agencies, institutes and volunteer groups which broadly affect teacher education. These organizations are involved in developing curriculum, providing training, promoting professional advancement, instigating programs of innovative instruction and implementing educational policy for preservice and inservice training of teachers for educational, instructional and managerial applications.

The purpose of the directory is to list on one place the many diverse groups which attempt to influence the education and conduct of teachers. An effort has been made to gather all independent organizations. Not included are government agencies, foundations, and groups that are an integral part of colleges or departments of education and whose main interests are restricted to a particularly small geographic area (ie., a county or state). To include every group who seeks to improve teacher education would have set impossible goals for realistically updated information.

Centers and laboratories funded by the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Educational Research and Improvement are in APPENDIX I and II. Appendix III contains a list of state departments of education, with the names and telephone numbers of the individuals responsible for teacher education and certification in that state.

The organizations are listed alphabetically by their acronyms; the ACRONYM INDEX contains the acronyms used and the full name of each organization. (Our computer processor allows no two organizations to have the same acronym, therefore several have been slightly altered.) Each directory entry contains a coded bottom line which lists the activity interests of the organization. The interest codes are listed in the INTEREST CODE INDEX, each followed by the acronyms of the associated organizations. The INTEREST CODE INDEX is located immediately after the body of the directory.

Each directory entry contains the organization's address; contact persons; telephone numbers; a brief description of membership and purpose; activities involving teachers, teaching and teacher education; types of publications and coded interests The information contained in each directory entry was collected by a mailed questionnaire and verified via telephone contact. The questionnaire used is included after the appendices. The information is correct effective November, 1985.

Several organizations have been flagged with an "X" in their interest code; we could not establish communication with these organizations but considered their role in teacher education too important to exclude them from the directory. The information listed in these entries has been culled from the Directory of Associations (Gale Publishing Company, 1985) and assorted references from the library of the Office of Educational Research and Improvement.

We anticipate updating the directory periodically. The questionnaire included can be used to add to or correct our files. The listing of committees, task forces and project groups provides information about the current activity that an organization supports concerning the interests of teacher education. Please feel free to add explanatory material. Finally, as with any project of this magnitude, there are omissions and we would appreciate information pertaining to them. Mail update material to ERIC Clearinghouse on Teacher Education, AACTE, One Dupont Circle, NW, Suite 610, Washington, DC, 20036.

We wish to thank Penny Purdue for her work on this project. Her many hours of attention to an enormous number of details have provided the profession with a valuable source of information.
